The teacher is like the candle, which lights others in consuming itself. – Ruffini

ARE WE EFFECTIVE

ISD is developing its five-year School Improvement Plan; it will guide the school through Year 2006. It is important to ask ourselves throughout this year, "Have we been effective for our students and their families? Are we now effective? What will make us the most effective for the next five years?" The Indiana State Education Improvement Plan lists the following elements of effective school systems:

- High academic standards
- Measurable academic and post-secondary results
- Agency collaboration and integration of services
- Effective transition services
- Comprehensive professional development
- Dissemination of research-based practices and technical assistance
- School-based positive behavioral interventions
- Parental involvement

As you travel through the year with your students and their families, follow these elements as well as elements that your experience has shown as effective. Continue to make ISD the best option for our students!

Renewing ISD's Purpose

Congratulations to David Gesslin and the Elementary Department on their recent award of $2500 from Citifinancial Foundation. Mr. Kovatch recently accepted a check from Annie Trojan, Assistant Branch Manager, and Matthew Waite, Branch Manager. Thanks to Mrs. Trojan for alerting us to this opportunity.

Atta Staff - Thanks to everyone for making this year's registration so GREAT! It was a little hectic due to the Indiana State Fair, but everyone did their best and we all should be proud of ISD's efforts to start another school year with that good old "fireball" enthusiasm. Best wishes to all of you for a wonderful, productive year. Let's keep our spirits high and our focus on the students!!

FIREBALLS AT WORK

Great job, Carol Morgan. Thank you for meeting the school buses bright and early to make sure the drivers drop off and pick up our students at the proper location!

Great job to the Educational Staff for an excellent Registration Day. Your classes look SUPER! And, your smiling faces and friendly manner made a wonderful 1st impression on our students and their families. Great way to start the year! – Bob Kovatch

ISD Graduate Honored at Conseco Fieldhouse

David Reeves, a 1980 graduate of ISD and an employee of Conseco Fieldhouse, was honored in July by the senior vice president/executive director of the home of the Indiana Pacers and Fever. David had just been chosen the Bowling Team USA for the 2001 Deaf World Games in Rome. He was also invited to the 2001 Team USA Invitational Trials (hearing) in December at Reno, Nevada.

During the previous week, David became the No. 1 male qualifier when he finished his three-day, 40-game trial with an 8,467 total. That's an average of 211.675. David was sponsored in the competition by the Pacers. Good luck in the upcoming 2001 Deaf World Games to all of our Hoosier and USA competitors.

– Summarized from an article by Dick Denny in the Sunday, July 23, 2000 issue of the Indianapolis Star

Staff Announcements

Welcome, Paul Wood - After receiving only 6 applicants and long interviews with 4 applicants, I am more than glad to share the information with you that we offered the position to Paul Wood. Paul was at the Central North Carolina School for the Deaf as the school's Fiscal Director. He accepted the offer and started working at ISD on Monday, July 31st. Please welcome him aboard when you have a chance!

Paul Wood was born deaf to a Deaf family in Oakland, CA. He was raised in San Ramon, CA all of his life and entered California School for the Deaf in Berkeley in 1971, when earthquake faults required the State of California to relocate students to Fremont. He graduated from CSDF in 1987, the same school his parents graduated from, and received a B.S. in Accounting from Gallaudet University in 1994. He worked as the Fiscal Director at Central NC School for the Deaf since January 1995.

Paul's father, Ron Wood, was in the 1961 Olympics in Finland. He competed in the 100m, 200m, and 400m relay track & field events. He also held, for 25 years, the 100m event record (10.7 seconds) at the Deaf School. Paul got his father's genes for rapid leg movement, just in a different way. Paul is an avid cyclist and was in professional cycling in 1995-1997. He rides his bike almost everyday during the cycling season. He participated in the World Games for the Deaf and hearing cycling races since 1987, and has won many medals. Just a few of Paul's successes & accolades...

- Silver & Bronze Medals, 1989 Summer World Games for the Deaf in New Zealand
- Gold Medal, 1000m match sprint, 1993 Summer World Games for the Deaf in Bulgaria
- Silver Medal, 35km TimeTrial, 1993 Summer World Games for the Deaf in Bulgaria
- 1994 Athlete of Year, American Athletic Association of the Deaf
- Gold Medal, 1000m match sprint, 1995 World Cycling Championship for the Deaf in France
- Silver Medal, 100km road race, 1995 World Cycling Championship for the Deaf in France
- 1997 Tour de Serbia in Yugoslavia
- Silver Medal, 1000m match sprint, 1997 Summer World Games for the Deaf in Denmark
- Two Gold Medals, 100km road race & 50km point race, 1997 Summer World Games for the Deaf in Denmark
- And last, but not least, he's going to 2001 Summer World Games for the Deaf in Italy!

Besides his work and cycling, Paul loves to play ping pong and table games (seems like Paul always wins! Must be that competitive bicycle mindset?) Paul's favorite eats are Mexican foods and Rocky Road ice cream! Paul also really enjoys watching Star Trek programs! Paul, his Deaf wife, Christine and Deaf son, Lance who is 19 months old, are very excited to move to Indiana from Greensboro, NC. They are currently house-hunting in Indiana.

For learning to be meaningful for students, it has to be goal-oriented and relevant to their experiences, and it has to occur through communicating and interacting with others. Student also need to link new information with their prior knowledge and experience. They have to be responsible for their own learning and excited by it. They need to demonstrate achievement and academic development.

IMPORTANT Technology News - It is always our desire to provide maximum stable computer and network environment, and most importantly, to provide a safe computing environment for our students and staff. With your help and cooperation, we can make that happen. A series of policies will be created throughout the school year. Here's our first one...

As of August 16, 2000, it is now the school's policy to disallow any use of AOL software (and other similar email providers such as MSN, Yahoo, etc.) on school computers. We consider AOL use to be of personal use. Although we are aware you can reach AOL via a web browser on the Internet, our new servers will filter and block this access eventually. Please remove this software today. If you need assistance, contact your help desk leader to create a work request ticket.

It is also our policy to disallow students use of chat rooms of any kind, from any servers/locations and to check their emails (from any email providers such as Yahoo, MSN, HotMail, etc.) in our classrooms at any time during the day. Teachers, we need your assistance monitoring students when they use our computers until our new Internet filtering servers are operational. Student Life and I will work together to come up with a best and safe environment for students to chat with their friends during the evenings.

Please instruct all your business and school colleagues to switch to your GroupWise email account for all school-related correspondence immediately. Later this year, every single staff member will receive their own GroupWise email accounts, so please do not ask your help desk leaders to submit work request tickets to create your accounts at this time. However, if you feel you absolutely need to have an account in order to perform your work duties, please see me. Later this year, a new list of unauthorized/unapproved software and web site access will be published and distributed. Feel free to express any concerns or opinions to me. - Jay Krieger, Director of Technology

Update - From the 1996 Legislature, the Board of Interpreter Standards was formed to develop standards for interpreters throughout the State of Indiana. Those standards were developed and recently signed by the Attorney General's Office and the Governor. They are now in affect. The Board will now focus on developing standards for interpreters in the educational setting. The committee will hold their first meeting during the month of September with the target date for completion of March or April 2001. For more information on either of these standards, contact Deaf and Hard of Hearing Services, 232-4311 or Judy Cass at 920-6311.

- Announcements

Laminating for MS/HS - The laminating machine is working now. Teachers and staff should give their items for laminating to their department secretary. Students from community service will deliver it to Wanda Kirby. She will laminate items and have them ready for pick up by 2:00 pm on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Please make sure to write your names on posters or items before they are laminated. Kathleen Walters and Cindy Squire will work out how to plan for students to pick up and deliver daily Mondays to Thursdays. If you have other questions, please contact Wanda Kirby by email or phone.

Phone Repairs - If you need to have your phone repaired or features changed (passwords, jack location, etc.), please contact BJ Helton, ISD Operator. She will send you a form for you to complete. Please return it to her. She will report the change to the Indiana Department of Information Technology. They will schedule Ameritech to come to ISD and make the change or repair. FYI about the Daily Bulletin - Some of you have expressed a concern about the heading font in the DB. The heading and subheadings are supposed to be in Algerian. However, some of your computers are not set up for this. Consequently, the heading and subheadings appear garbled or difficult to read. This may also happen as pictures and graphics appear in future issues. Please keep Dan Stutler informed of this. He will try to accommodate your needs. Hopefully, these problems will be fewer and fewer as the school network comes online. Thank you for your patience.

Message Boards - Announcements for the Message Boards in Alumni Hall, Vocational, the Health Center, Caskey and Campus Police can be sent to Dan Stutler. Daily announcements are made at 9:00 am and 3:10 pm. This is an excellent way to publicize your activity or announce any last minute changes. Message boards will be operation very soon in Koob and Fair Halls. Raney, Preschool, Willard, Elementary and the Assessment Center will follow this fall or early winter.

Some of the message boards in Alumni Hall are not work due to last week's electrical outage and accompanying power surge. If yours is not operating, please make sure that you inform Dan Stutler through Campus Mail or by email at djstutler@isfd.state.in.us. Thank you for your patience.

If you have anything you want brought up to the PTCO Board pertaining to the Residential Program or the Educational Program, please see Melinda or Leitha. The next PTCO Board meeting will be Sept. 17, Sunday, from 3:00 to 5:00. For more information, contact Co-Presidents Bea Pfaff at beampfaff@hotmail.com or Rick Ogan at oganr@tc.

Premier Student Agenda Tips – Some Best Practices include:

Each agenda contains a Record of Achievement. It's important that students enter all major grades in this Record. Why?

- Students are encouraged to set a goal.
- Students become motivated to improve.
- Students know approximately where they stand academically.

Some schools that extensively use the Record find it so good at communicating progress to the home that they have eliminated midterm reports. Now they have painless, efficient and simple continuous progress reporting. Best of all, it's LESS work for teachers than before.

Phone Repairs – As staff has turned in phone repair requests, the forms have been faxed to DoIT. This is the sub-department of the Indiana Department of Administration that schedules phone repairs. ISD cannot schedule them directly due to state regulations. DoIT had a repairperson from Ameritech come to ISD last week. But, he had no experience with TTYs or the other repairs that needed to be made. Consequently, no progress was made. Sorry for any inconvenience that the system is causing you and thank you for your continued patience. – BJ Helton, Switchboard

The Deaf and Hard of Hearing Communication Contest followed the luncheon. Jon Mowl won the $1,500 college scholarship. Congratulations to all these students.

FIREBALLS AT WORK

Monday FIREBALLS go to Mike McGeath, last Friday's E-Man (emergency man) who came to the rescue when an elementary students missed the bus. Thanks to Mike, the youngster arrived home just a litter later than usual.

Teachable Moment - Waiting for the bus on a Friday afternoon can seem like an eternity for an elementary student. Young eyes dart towards every bus that turns down the lane, only to be disappointed when the bus monitors announce, "No, that one is not yours." Students can become restless, cranky, and depressed. Upon seeing a small group of elementary students starting to "melt-down," Elementary teacher, U. Sung Chung (Friday bus monitor), borrowed a rubber squishy toy that looked like an octopus, knelt down in front of the restless group of elementary students and proceeded to entertain them with the toy (counting games, magic, make believe) until their busses arrived. They were all smiles for that time period, and I imagine the time flew by while watching the USC Show. As principal, I see many great things happening at ISD daily. Mike McGeath and USC went the extra mile last Friday. Give them a pat on the back today. They deserve it! - Bob Kovatch

Exciting Internet Event - What: Globefield Mini-Trek to England (Internet Field Trip with Curriculum Materials)

For Whom: Elementary, Middle, and Junior High School Students

When: September 11, 12, 13, 2000 (password access to site valid until September 30)

How much: Totally FREE!

Dear Educator:

You're invited to send your elementary, middle school, and junior high students to England via the Internet. With the FREE Globefield Mini-Trek to England during September 11, 12, and 13, your students will build their international knowledge and understanding, as well as enhance their technology skills. Globefield Academy (<http://www.globefieldacademy.com/>) is pleased to offer the opportunity for thousands of students to explore the lives of students in England through our interactive Mini-Trek.

We hope that you and your students will join us as we explore London to find out if English students really eat fish and chips or ever watch the Changing of the Guard at Buckingham Palace. Students will brush up on their geography knowledge, learn some new English (The Queen's, of course), and ask students about their favorite sports and music through the online Globefield discussion area. Once a classroom enrolls and receives its password, students will be able to begin posting questions to English students via the discussion area. Teachers will have the opportunity to ask teachers in England about how they are leveraging technology in the classroom. Curriculum materials will be provided to classrooms that participate in the Mini-Trek. Of course we hope that in addition to experiencing this FREE Mini-Trek, you'll consider enrolling in one of our full programs to learn more about Germany, France, Spain, Italy, or Brazil. In October, classrooms that enroll in a full Globefield Program will be going on a full Trek to explore the lives of students in other European countries. In the spring we'll have a Trek to Brazil. Enroll today in the FREE Globefield Mini-Trek to England! On the Internet go to http://www.globefieldacademy.com/ga_system/default.htm to go directly to the enrollment page. Before the Mini-Trek begins, we will send you a username and password. With the username and password you will be able to access the Mini-Trek from the Login section of the Web site. Once you have logged in, you will be able to access the curriculum materials. We look forward to hearing from you. And we look forward to visiting the people of England!

Children are like snowflakes, unique, fragile and fleeting – Stefanie Thomas

Citizens of TOMMORROW

Rex Comer, principal of Janson Elementary, has a simple method of developing responsibility in his students. When he first arrived in this Rosemead, California school, Mr. Comer listened to what the teachers had to say, "They told me their biggest problem was the lack of homework completion, the lack of follow-through."

So, Rex decided to do something about it. Starting last year, he instituted a system that has each teacher check homework every morning. Teachers check agendas to see if the assignment was written in, if it was checked off, and if the parent has signed the agenda. Comer collects all this information. "If everything isn't complete, I call the parents." A brief chat with a parent usually solves the problem. It's simple, direct and effective.

But isn't it a lot more work for both teachers and principal? Rex has a ready answer: "Initially I made a lot of calls. But. As the year goes on, it tails off rapidly." He explains further: "We want the kids to be responsible for doing their work. And what we've actually found is that teachers have, using this method, actually saved instructional time."

Instructional time and student responsibility are not the only beneficiaries of comer's agenda program. The results also include a closer relationship with parents and the community. In fact, the PT fully funds the agenda program. It does take some effort, particularly in the initial stages. But for Janson Elementary, the agenda program is worth it. Haven't we always known that a stitch in time saves nine? – Taken from the Premier Companion

Premier Student Agenda Tips – Time Management vs. College Grades

Bruce K. Britton and Abraham Tesser studied the correlation between time management and grades in college. Ninety students completed a time management questionnaire. Four years later, the results were compared with cumulative GPAs. The researchers concluded that time management practices may influence achievement. Time management was a better predictor of success than SAT scores.

In-State Travel - When filling out the in-state request forms for workshops, etc. being attended, please fill out the registration form when you are including that with your information. Sometimes, the State asks for information I cannot answer without calling the person who is requesting to attend. That is time consuming. Please have them filled out and include with the In-state travel form. Thanks for your help. – Pam Lewis Message Boards – The engineer will be working on the message boards on the first and second floors of High School on Thursday, August 24. Please pardon any inconvenience this may cause. The message boards in Fair and Koob Halls will be connected the rest of the system also on Thursday.

What Are Differences Between Higher- and Lower-Performing Indiana Schools in Reading and Mathematics

Many of you may have read the recent Education Matter! (July-August 2000). However, one brief article is worth repeating. IDOE funded a study by the North Central Regional Educational Laboratory (NCREL) to determine the differences between schools that perform higher versus schools that perform lower. The research showed that schools best benefit their students by:

- ❑ Providing students with access to a variety of print materials in an accessible library;
- ❑ Analyzing and supplement traditional instructional materials (textbooks);
- ❑ Relying on several reading and intervention programs;
- ❑ Emphasizing the meaning of mathematics over mathematics content alone; Provide mentor teachers to coach and help other teachers teach mathematics; and Offer professional development opportunities in the teaching of both reading and mathematics;
- ❑ Having prevailing high expectations for all students;
- ❑ Coaching and guiding instructional opportunities for students; and
- ❑ A belief that ALL students can learn regardless of socio-economic or other at-risk factors.

WOW! Seems like an excellent School Improvement Plan.

FIREBALLS AT WORK

FIREBALLS to the ISD Audiology Team, which includes Deb Liebrich, Linda Charlebois, and Shannon Stafford. They have been busy setting up and becoming skilled at doing ABR testing. ABR stands for Auditory Brainstem Response, and is known also as BSER. The equipment arrived this summer and is being offered for the first time at ISD. Prior to having the equipment, if an infant or a child needed an ABR to test to identify or confirm a hearing loss, we had to refer to other audiologists or to hospitals, such as Riley Hospital. ABR testing is an objective test that can measure hearing. Sensors are placed on the child's head to measure changes in brainwaves when sounds are heard. The audiologists have demonstrated a great deal of patience and creativity in learning how to use the equipment, where to place it, and how to make it as comfortable as possible. It is located in the audiology booth in the main building, room G-11. Several ISD staff graciously offered to be the first recipients of ABR testing so the equipment could be set up right. Thanks to all the "guinea pigs" who gave up valuable work time for this project. Any questions about this testing should be directed to one of the audiologists or to Cindy Lawrence.

We must be the change we want to see in the world! - Ghandi

Dear ISD Community,

As we get nearer to September, ISTEP cannot be far away. The following article by Barbara Lanman-Givens, Principal of Hedges Central Elementary, and David Gilman, Professor at Indiana State University, helps us realize what educators and school communities across the state are experiencing. – Bob Kovatch

Increasing Your School's Test Scores Ethically

By Barbara Lanman-Givens, Principal
Hedges Central Elementary School and

David Gilman, Professor
Indiana State University

Students throughout the nation take many kinds of standardized tests. The results of these tests along with how a school's test scores rank among other schools in the state or region are often published in local newspapers. There may even be occasions when the public has been informed of these scores and rankings before the school administrators and teachers have had a chance to examine them. The reporting of these results has the potential for a school to bask in the recognition of high scores or face a public relations nightmare whenever the performance is low.

Testing can be a two-edged sword for administrators and teachers. Employments, careers, and reputations may be in jeopardy because of low test scores or because of practices that some may perceive to be unethical conduct or cheating. There are courses of action that administrators can pursue to ensure that school test scores increase and that the increase occurs in an ethical manner.

- Ensure that the curriculum of the school is aligned with state proficiencies and the standardized test content. It is not, of course, accurate to equate the quality of a school with how the curriculum is aligned, but test performance will not improve unless curriculum articulation has been investigated and adjusted. The amount of congruence between the school curriculum, state proficiency standards, and test content is a direct indicator of scores that a school will achieve.

"Each member of a school's faculty should be knowledgeable about content standards and should be responsible for integrating these skills and objectives into what they teach."

- A listing or a checklist of skills that students are to master in each content area informs students and teachers of what learners are expected to know can also provide evidence of how the curriculum and construction should be revised. Each member of a school's faculty should be knowledgeable about content standards and should be responsible for integrating these skills and objectives into what they teach. The notion that the tested skills are taught in isolation in only one grade is a foolish one. It takes the entire school to educate a child, and all teachers can contribute to ensuring that content standards are being taught in their grade level and/or area of specialization.
- Students and teachers must be taught to believe that tests are important to them. Students, who might otherwise consider tests to be no big deal, need to know that test results can affect their academic progress, their careers, and their futures. They should be provided with the reasons that they are taking the tests and be given encouragement as the test day approaches. Students should be provided with opportunities to practice on tests in various forms, and it is especially important that they become very familiar with the performance items in which they write to a prompt or explain how they arrived at answers to math problems. Practice with these types of items should be a regular part of their daily lessons, but practice testing should always be conducted within strict guidelines of ethical conduct. Since the objective is for students to increase their test scores and lower their test anxiety, a calm manner on the part of teachers can be reassuring to students.

- Test taking skills should be communicated to students. Coaching them to follow test directions precisely, read items thoroughly, use their time efficiently, use the process of elimination, and always check their work will serve them well. Some schools are discovering that a good reading for enjoyment program can be beneficial to their efforts to increase language arts and reading subtest scores.
- Parents also play an important supporting role. Parents should be informed of the test dates and be sure that their children attend unless they are ill. Parents should take steps to ensure that their child gets a good night's sleep and an appropriate breakfast on the day of the test. A copy of the content standards, what their children are expected to know, and a summary of the child's past performance should be shared with parents. Teachers need to make themselves available to discuss any questions that a parent may have about scores of individual students.

• The conditions under which the test is administered can also directly affect a school's test scores. Following the guidelines provided in the examiner's manual is important. The testing schedule and test monitor assignment should be designed to produce optimal results rather than to conform to administrative expedience.

• Additional teachers or aides assigned to each testing area assist in monitoring student progress and can help correct problems that occur when students do not stay on task. Uncompleted papers, correct answers inadequately erased, and answers that are offtrack must be dealt with before the students leave the testing area.

Test results provide a diagnostic prescriptive approach a clinical approach - to improving learning. In addition to being trained in what the tests are for, teachers must also learn what test scores mean. When test results become available, the scores should be examined and analyzed to determine what skills were mastered and what weaknesses need to be corrected. Students should be given feedback concerning their strengths and weaknesses so that they can recognize the purpose of having taken the test.

Again, all faculty members should be aware of how students scored on the information so that changes in instruction or curriculum can be accomplished if necessary. Teachers need to know the precise meaning of predicted scores, standard scores, and percentiles. A comparison of actual score with predicted score can be used to determine whether a school is meeting its expectations.

Careful consideration of these recommendations will assuredly help in raising a school's test scores and will provide ownership of the testing procedures for the entire school community.

Sports Update - Our HS Varsity Volleyball Team participated in the Arlington Invitational last weekend and finished in 3rd place out of 8 teams. In the opener, we beat Tech easily and faced Heritage Christian in the semi-finals. We couldn't break 20+ years dominance of Heritage Christian as they beat us, 1 - 2. We finished off Arlington for 3rd place. Our record is 3 - 1.

Player of Game

Against Tech: Valerie Sharer - 6 kills and 5 serve points

Against H.C.: Cherish Lewis - 8 kills and 2 serve aces

Against Arlington: Cherish Lewis - 4 serve aces and 8 serve points

PowerPoint Workshop - Jim Frenchik's PowerPoint workshop for Thursday, August 31, is closed. There is, however, a short waiting list of staff members who expressed interest in the workshop. If anyone would like to attend the same workshop on Thursday, September 1, please contact Jim through campus mail. Because this is a workshop, participants are still required to bring text, graphics, or photos that they would like to put into a PowerPoint presentation.

Message Boards – The message boards in the Health center, caskey Gym and Campus Police are not working. They lost their connection to the system after Koob and Fair Halls were added to the network. Hopefully, this will be repaired by Friday. Please excuse the inconvenience.

A mind, once stretched by a new idea, never regains its original dimensions. - Unknown

A Calf Path

(Based on a poem by Sam Walter Foss)

Long ago, through the woods
A calf walked home, as good calves should.

It made a trail all bent and skewed,
A crooked trail as all calves do.

Since the two hundred years have fled,
And now, I guess, the calf is dead.

But he left behind the rambling trail,
Which leads us to this little tale.

The trail was taken up the next day
By a lone dog that passed that way.

And soon an old bellweather sheep
Led his flock, most half asleep,

Following the steps of that first calf
Through those old woods they made a path.

And then the town folks found the route
And walked it, winding in and out.

They always muttered words of wrath,
Like, "Curse this crazy, crooked path."

But still they followed – do not laugh –
The trail left by that early calf.

A winding, crooked path they stalked,

This forest path became a lane
That bent and turned and turned again;

This crooked lane became a road
Where many a poor horse, with his load,

Toiled on beneath the burning sun
And walked three miles just to travel one.

The years flew by on in a beat
The road became a village street.

Then, before they were aware,
A city's crowded thoroughfare,

Where millions take their daily ride
On superhighways six lanes wide!

They zig and zag, where the little calf did,
And brake and swerve and slip and skid,

And on they go, but not content,
The traffic of a continent.

And though they still could cut in half
The path once taken by that calf,

They choose, instead, to follow – not find –
Holding to the calf path of the mind.

Today, folks still trudge through the snow

Because the calf wobbled when he walked.

Just like that horse from long ago,

And like that horse they wear their blinders,
For they are followers, not finders.

Do I lead or am I led
By one calf, now two centuries dead?

Now you may say they're quite insane
For sticking to that wandering lane.

But from them we must learn to do
The things we can to change our view.

But ask yourself, if you will dare,
Do I ever challenge what's already there?

For we can gain from their mistake –
And choose with care the road we take

Do I go forth and seek to change,
To chart a new course or re-arrange?

Oh, how our lives would flourish, if we only
Could chart new paths through daily woods.

Sports Update –The ISD Varsity Volleyball Team gave a #1 payback to Bethesda Christian for beating us last year. We allowed them to steal the first game, 13 - 15. However, we refocused and renewed our determination finishing them off, 15 - 6 and 15 - 8. The Player of Game was Melissa Buterbaugh with 6 kills and 1 block while "cripping around". Our record is 4 – 1. The next match will be with Indianapolis Baptist this Thursday at ISD (4:30 pm).

The 5/6th graders had a hot contest against Kingsway last night and almost got away with victory as Kingsway won 2 games over ISD's 1 game. The 7/8th had a thrilling contest where the girls came back from behind to grab the lead and a victory TWICE. Excellent determination and mindset to our young volleyballers!!!

The JV Volleyball team didn't fare as well as hoped and lost both games to Bethesda. The team is still working on a full team within 2 weeks will prosper.
